MORE MUSIC THE NEED OF THE DAY

Children Should be Given a Chance to Learn to Enjoy it as it is Not an Art But a Means of Expression.

BY DAVID MANNES.

If I could choose my vocation in life and could do as I pleased I would elect to go about these United States talking with the fathers and mothers about the development of music among the children. I would like to be at the head of a movement designed to see that music or the love of music should not be crushed out of the child life.

I believe with Tolstoy who says: "Music, first of all, is not a trade or a profession, but a means of expression for every one of us." The term "means of expression" may be misunderstood, and I shall try to explain it by going back and showing what it has meant in the development of art from the very early times.

When the pagan of old, fashioned with faltering fingers the idols of wood and stone which were the highest expression of his contemporary art, his adoring eyes were fixed on something far beyond anything that he could reach to, to which he wanted to pour out his very soul, and as one looks at these relics—the Pagan idols and the totem poles of the Alaskan Indians, for example, one feels that the crude material expression of the worship of something higher.

The pyramids were reared to the ancient kings of Egypt because these kings were, in popular belief, to earthly representatives of the Almighty and bore the stamp of Divine power, and it is to this spirit of eternal truth that the monuments are a tribute.

A long time after that came the efforts of the Greeks and the Romans to express their adoration of their developing ideals, and then was the birth of the great art.

The Revelation.
And to Israel with the recognition of the Spiritual Light came something so illuminating, so fiery, so marvelous that not in stone or marble could it be adequately expressed. It was a light so blinding, a flame so enduring that spiritual religion began in its cradle.

With Christianity and the Catholic faith came the rituals and men reared marvelous and enduring monuments of stone to house their ideals and constructed wonderful organs to sound God's praises, instead of the ancient harp and timbrels. Then music, as we know it today, was born. Inspired by their faith, the old Italian masters composed in pure adoration music which will never die.

Never a thought of gain oppressed these men whose hearts worshipped while their hands sought to all praise the enduring artistic monuments. It was sometime after this, when appreciation of what had been thus produced grew, that the followers of these simple and pure men began to see the chance of personal gain and the insidious attacks of the commercial spirit began to weaken and spoil the artistic product. And we have come on music as we know it today, a commercial ends this wonderful art that should only speak divine truth.

There is, however, a fine professionalism in music, for which there is legitimate excuse and need. The finest, to my mind, is that of the inspired teacher. You know very well that when you have seen something beautiful—a simple and pure melody—something equally glorious and inspiring—your first impulse is to call some one to share it with you.

Now in the search for truth in music, we see these visionaries and others to see them, and we are unhappy that the vision is denied so many.

To study music so as to be able to play in concert is not love for music at all but the seeking of a trade with your musical instrument for a tool.

Love of Children.
Is it not best for your children to love their music as they love you? It is a part of the same thing—the love of music and the love of you. Both must be pure. Would you have them put their love for you on a money basis?

What I would like to do is to raise the art of music from a professional to an amateur basis. Our current idea that music is at its best when it is professional—that amateur music is bad music—is typical of the present age, which tries to see all values in money terms. The modern notion that a few should be set apart and specialized to perform the world's music for it is childish and transitory. In the middle ages, for instance, a few learned men were professionalized to do the world's writing for it. Now every one learns to read and write simply because every one needs the means of expressing himself. Just so, every child, because of the very act that he needs self-expression, must be given the opportunity to learn music. A half century from now I believe practically every one will be a musician, just as now practically every one can read and write.

Don't feel lively as you "use" Bones getting stiff—losing juice, Brace up—tackle it again Rocky Mountain Tea will help you win. Adv. Coonley Drug Store.

SAMUEL ADLER HAS GOOD CHANCE TO RECOVER

Physicians attending Samuel Adler, the clothier injured Friday night when an auto in which he was riding was struck by a street car, stated Monday morning that his chances to recover are of the best. He was resting comfortably at the St. Joseph hospital. "If nothing unforeseen sets in and we do not anticipate anything, Mr. Adler will recover in a short time," said Dr. Edgar Myers, one of the attending physicians. Dr. Goldsmith of Chicago returned to that city Sunday night feeling that nothing serious is to be expected.

KUESPERT SAYS LID WAS ON TIGHT SUNDAY

That the "lid" was on tighter Sunday in South Bend than it has been on any Sunday during the past 12 years, was the flat statement made Sunday night by Chief of Detectives John Kuespert.

Kuespert came out with the expression following a walk which he judged to be about nine or ten miles during the afternoon. With him on this jaunt were Detectives Diver and Lane. The three men covered the entire west and south side on the journey and estimated that they visited over 100 saloons.

This is the time of year most trying on those inclined to be constipated. Many dread winter because of it. Don't worry, just take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, nature's surest, safest and best tonic regulator. Take it once a week. Start tonight. Coonley Drug Store.

JOHN F. MEIGHAN IS SHOWING IMPROVEMENT

John F. Meighan, civil engineer, shot last week by his son, is reported making favorable progress toward recovery at the St. Joseph hospital. For a time after the shooting Mr. Meighan's recovery was slow, but during the past few days he has rallied and improved considerably. His son Edward who did the shooting is still confined in the county jail. No affidavits have as yet been filed against him.

THE PRICE SHE PAYS.

There is hardly an American woman who can keep pace with the demands made upon her time and energy without paying the penalty of ill-health. It may be that dreadful backache, dragging pains, headaches, nervousness or the tortures of a displacement. It is the price she pays. To women this condition Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound comes as a boon and a blessing.

ANDERSON.—An unidentified man, killed by a train in the Big Four yards here. Recognition was impossible because of the mangled state of the body, the single clue to identity being a scar on his paper.

When you are wearied from over-work, feel listless and languid, can't sleep or eat, as you should, take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. Makes you feel better than ever. Just try it tonight. Coonley Drug Store. Adv.
